This is to certify that Shyama Prasad Mukherji College, University of Delhi has an active Eco club that undertakes regular environment awareness activities. It is brought to my notice that the institute has undertaken several initiatives in the field of energy conservation, water management, waste management and greenery management. These include installation of a solar roof top panel, construction of walking tracks, plantation of saplings and trees in the college campus.

The college endeavours to enrich the mind set of students and ignite a spark for knowledge and environment improvement through regular outreach events like seminars, workshops, community awareness drives, competitions etc. Awareness building about sustainable development goals and action projects are also undertaken through lectures and interactions with eminent institutes and personalities. TERI has been a regular participant in these activities, since the past several years, and I am impressed by the commitment of faculty members working towards eco club activities of the college.
